EDITOR OCHS LEAVES PHILADELPHIA LEDGER

Because of his failure to agree with the views taken by Cyrus R. K. Curtis, president of the Philadelphia Public Ledger Company, regarding the publishing of the newspaper controlled by the corporation, George W. Ochs retired the first of the year as editorin-chief of the publication. His place was taken by John J. Spurgeon, at one time a Philadelphia newspaper man, but later employed on the staffs of the New York Herald, the World and the Evening Mail. Mr. Curtis in a statement given out admitted that Mr. Ochs retired because he could not agree with him, but declared that the resignation was tendered and accepted in a most amicable spirit.

Mr. Ochs said that he retained a considerable holding of the undeclying securities of the Public Ledger and had not determined what his future activities would be, but that he might loin the New York Times Company, of which he is a director. auge of his failure to agree with

HONOLULU STAR-BULLETIN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1915.

Owing to the failure of small cane planters of the island of Hawaii to be present, the first hearing of the investigating committee on the Holstein resolution to probe the business relations existing between the angar milis and small planters lasted only 20 minutes last night and adjourned after hearing one speaker, Attorney R. W. Breckons, representing the small plan.ers, Breckons assured the committee that the small planters, the ones upon whom he depends for evidence against sugar mills, would appear at the meeting of the committee March 23. Breckons said that a report reached him that an attempt would be made to prevent witnesses from ap-pearing before the committee, but added that he gave the rumor no cre-dence. To the report, Chairman Isenberg of the committee replied vigor

"Every one will be given opportu-nity to appear before this committee," he declared, and to make sure that there would be no complaints I saw to it that our meetings, which were set for March 16, 18, 23 and so on, set for March 16, 19, 23 and so on, had been advertised in the English and Hawaiian papers and Portuguese and Hawaiian papers and Portuguese newspapers of the islands."

Breckons intimated that he might ask the chairman for subpoenas for witnesses who can produce documents necessary in the probe. A committee had been appointed by the senate to advise with the house committee, but as the investigation is now being carried on in accordance with House Resolution No. 7 and not House Concurried on in accordance with House Res-olution No. 7 and not House Concur-rent Resolution No. 6, which was "killed" because of the slowness of the senate, according to the house complaint the senate committee will have no voice in any decision or re-bort.
